With your food basket and my food basket, the people will thrive

All complex projects are done for people, by people, and with people. They require the formation of teams united to achieve a shared vision. Each person's contribution is to be valued, taking account of different strengths, weaknesses and perspectives to get the most robust solutions.

Effective teamwork is often a hard-won and subconscious skill; however, it does not have to be this way. The first step in the journey to being an effective team member is an honest self-assessment of your skills and abilities. This way, you can confidently know what you bring to the table in your 'food basket' (both good and in need of improvement).

Complete both tasks below for Monday, 27 July.

Task 1 – Reflect on your previous team experiences

Reflect on your experience in teams. Experience in teams can include university teams, sports teams, internships, youth groups etc. Comment on your previous experience(s) and assess your strengths and weaknesses by providing relevant examples of what worked and did not work. To help guide your reflection, think about the following questions (you do not need to answer each of these questions in your reflection):

- To date, have you preferred working alone or in a team? Why do you think this might be?
- What are some of your strengths and weaknesses working in teams?
- How do you think other teammates have interpreted your behaviour in these situations?
- What have been some key lessons learnt from these experiences?

Task 2 - Set personal S.M.A.R.T. goals

Now that you have reflected on your experience in teams, apply a growth mindset to set yourself some goals. Identify three areas for improvement (review the following resources here & here) and set yourself three S.M.A.R.T. teamwork goals to be achieved within this semester in ENGGEN 403. Justify your goals.

S	M	A	R	T
Specific	Measurable	Achievable	Relevant	Timely
What do you want to do?	How will you know when you've reached it?	Is it within your power to accomplish it?	Does the goal align with improving your interaction with teammates?	When exactly do you want to accomplish it?

Rubric

50% of the final mark is completing your assigned peer reviews. The other 50% is determined by the moderated peer review mark using the rubric below. Do not include any identifying information in your file/file name if you do not want to be identified.
